

DBAC6900 : Directed Studies

Students select a specific business opportunity and are guided through the learning process of organizational assessment, leadership innovation and communication, and design and system considerations. Promising practices are identified for addressing the business opportunity.

Credits 1